Recruitment Email

Hello,

I hope you are well. I am currently working toward a PhD degree in Higher Education Administration. I have reached the research phase of my dissertation and am seeking nuclear medicine technologists with disabilities to participate in my research. The purpose of my project is to gather deep and meaningful stories from Nuclear Medicine technologists who identify with having a disability. I will be conducting one-on-one interviews to provide context to the lived experiences of nuclear medicine technologists with disabilities. The disability may be physical, psychological, and behavioral or cognitive. The information collected may provide information about the accommodations needed and used. It may also assist in a better understanding the necessary technical standards and essential job functions. If you are willing to participate, please contact me for more information. Also, you may find the official recruitment statement attached to this email.
